Bibliography (Books or articles you have written, or books, bulletins, magazines, catalogues in which you are mentioned) Sunday, June 9, 1940, Cleve. Plain Dealer:
By Grace Kelly: "Frederick K. Russell, one of younger artists, promising from the begining now has definitely arrived and takes his place among Cleveland's leading artists. His entries, including his decoration "Daisy, Daisy" have a convincing effect of permanence which means that the artist can turn out other works as entertaining and as excellent any time he likes."
